

Action Learning In Challenging Times

Sign up for a pop-up learning event and explore a unique opportunity to meet colleagues and invest in sustaining your own practice by clicking here.

The Department of Children, Equality, Disability, Integration and Youth is offering a free, once-off active learning opportunity with colleagues who share a commitment to improving outcomes for children and young people.

“If your professional motivation needs a boost and working with children and young people is your job as well as your passion, why not participate in this unique learning opportunity with colleagues who share a commitment to promoting equality and inclusion?”

Dr. Liz Hayes, Action Learning Host

Throughout the pandemic, professional development opportunities and networking were challenging as we all struggled to offer day-to-day supports in changing circumstances. The problem-solving that often happens informally with colleagues was not always possible and plans had to be changed to keep everyone safe and well. What Works, an initiative of the Department of Children, Equality, Disability, Integration and Youth is offering a series of blended physical and on-line action learning opportunities for staff working with children and young people with a commitment to promoting inclusive practice. More information on What Works and previous Action Learning events can be found here.

This is an opportunity to build your capacity to take the learning from your professional life and work on real problems in a small group setting, ultimately to help children, young people and families. And if the pop-up works for you and it stokes your curiosity, you may wish to participate in an on-going hybrid learning space over the following six-months. Online events are available at the following times, please choose which best suits you:

15 February	16:30 - 17:45
16 February	10.00 - 11.15
16 February	14.00 - 15:15
